

Are you a Good Hockey Parent?

If you take a look at the following questions and notice a bit of yourself in there, we ask that you kindly remove your name from running for hockey parent of the year.

- Do you have a spreadsheet on your fridge with your child's statistics?
- Do you cheer during warm ups?
- Unless your child needs a ride, do you go to practice?
- Have you ever found yourself at center ice, without skates on, in street clothes, uninvited, cursing at an official?
- Have you ever dreamt of the above scenario?
- Have you ever refused to remove your foot from a coach's neck until he threatens legal action?
- Have you ever threatened someone else at a game with your kid's Synergy?
- Have you tried to return your son or daughter's stick to the pro shop because it had "no goals in it"?
- Did you contact NCAA scouts before your kid's 10th birthday?
- Do you demand of your kid that a goal and an assist be scored before you'll let him or her eat?
- Do you call your son or daughter by a different name -- like, say, Stone Hands -- depending on how well he or she played?
- On the day your child was born, did you work out the math on his draft-eligible year?
- Have you ever led a "S-I-E-V-E!" chant against a 10-year-old?
- Do you forget the last compliment you've given to your kid's teammates?
- Do you forget the last compliment you've given to your own kid?
